

Experience report: Studying “International Information Systems”

We are proud and delighted that our first graduate has successfully completed the International Information Systems Bachelor's degree program.

Program Manager Christine Greve congratulates Adesina Akinkunmi, the first graduate of the Bachelor's degree program “International Information Systems”.

Adesina Akinkunmi likes to talk about his experiences during his studies:

Did the course meet your expectations?

Yes, the course fulfilled my expectations, especially due to the practical content and the international orientation.

What content did you particularly like?

I particularly liked the international project work, the intercultural modules and the programming and analysis component, which offered valuable practical experience.

Why did you choose Augsburg as your place of study?

I chose Augsburg because the university has a good reputation and the city offers an attractive international environment.

Did you receive valuable support during your studies?

Yes, I received valuable support from the dedicated lecturers, who were always on hand to help with questions and problems.

How did you experience the cultural diversity on the Bachelor's degree program International Information Systems?

The cultural diversity was enriching, as it promoted exchange and enabled new perspectives in an international context.

The “International Information Systems” degree program started in winter semester 2021/22.

Think global - act local and digital!

International IT specialists for information systems work at the interface between different areas of knowledge and therefore require an understanding of the disciplines involved in the International Information Systems degree program: business, computer science and internationality.

You will acquire skills in these areas on the International Information Systems (BSc) degree program and leave the University of Applied Sciences Augsburg as an internationally sought-after personality!

Language: English; modules in German can also be selected in higher semesters.

7 semesters / Start in winter semester / Full-time / Degree: Bachelor of Science
